"Save the Forest Week" Campaign

The idea of "Save the Forest Week" Campaign in Canada is to enlist all citizens as protectors of their forest estate throughout the entire fire season. Eighty-six per cent of forest fires start through human carelessness. Mortarists, fishermen, hunters, campers, settlers, and local residents are potential fire sitters unless personally disposed to protect the forests against fire.

All citizens have a direct interest in forest fire prevention.

FIRE THREATENS OUR NATIONAL HERITAGE

Carelessness Destroys 3,000,000 acres annually of Canadian Forest

Loss of standing timber by fire continues to be appalling. On the average, over 3,500 million board feet are destroyed annually. The forests of Canada are being depleted at a rate they cannot possibly withstand; more than half of this depletion is due to fire, insects and decay. The future of the forest industry is just as dependent on the seedling trees and young growth as the pulp and paper mills, and industry generally, are dependent on mature timber—both must be saved from the ravages of fire.

In addition to the shelter afforded by the forest to the farmer and his stock, settlers in forested regions are vitally dependent on the woods for winter employment. Care with fire in land-clearing operations is all-essential—burned timber pays no wages.

Canada has the finest inland fishing in the world, but these splendid food and game fish require clean, cold water in the streams to ensure prolific reproduction. Forest fires are inimical to fish life.

Game animals attract foreign tourists and induce Canadians to seek pleasure, health, and adventure in the great outdoors. These animals are distinctly a forest resource—utterly dependent on it for protection and food. Forest fires are most destructive of such wild life.

Ninety per cent of the forest fires are caused by carelessness. Are you doing your part to prevent this wanton waste and destruction?

CHARLES STEWART
MINISTER OF THE INTERIOR

Alberta Professor Discovers Medicine That Hastens Recovery Of Broken Bones

Medicine to speed up recovery from broken bones is the latest idea in surgery.

Bones could largely of calcium phosphate, and after a fracture, fresh quantities of this substance must be taken from the blood for the formation of new bone. The healing process is slow owing to the small quantity of calcium and phosphorus in the blood.

Professor Colly, of the University of Alberta, Edmonton, abstracted from the parathyroid glands an extract which, when injected or given by the mouth, increases the amount of both calcium and phosphorus in the blood. The parathyroids are four small glands in the neck near the thyroid gland, or embedded in it.

With this wireless station at the top, all that is necessary is to send a summons in the next few minutes help will already be on the way.

Practically all large broadcast stations in New York are being sold for advertising. It is difficult for anyone to get advertising through these stations even at advance rates. WJAP took all other stations for advertising accounts and revenue. The charge made by this station is sold to range from $100 to $500 per hour. WJAP is another New York station which carries a great amount of advertising at a rate said to be $500 an hour. Other broadcasting stations throughout the country charge still rates for the use of their studio, but the average cost is estimated at $25 an hour.

When Should Man Retire?

Efficiency of the Elderly Not to be Despaired Says Sir Herbert Morgan

At what age should a business man retire?

Sir Woodhouse Baskerville, chairman and managing director of Harrow's, opening the Business Efficiency Exhibition at Westminster, declared that many business men had been ruined by old-fashioned methods and old-fashioned men, who had often to some extent been led back by trying to keep their position too long.

Young men, he urged, should be given their opportunity. Sir Woodhouse is 52.

Sir Herbert Morgan, director of Lever Bros., Ltd., who is 69, challenges Sir Woodhouse's contention to say:

"I think it is the elderly man, despite what may be said to the contrary, who matters in business today. One must only look round at the great commercial concerns, the big banks, insurance companies, and the like, and it will be found that it is men who are well over 50 who are in control. Business efficiency implies both experience and judgment, which are frequently more highly developed beyond the ages of 45 and 50."

Sir Harold Baskerville, managing director of the Halifax City Co. Ltd., Nottingham, who is 45, says:

"So long as a man is efficient it does not matter about his age, but I think a man is probably at his best between the ages of 45 and 55 and can give his best to business. On the other hand, there are many cases of firms which are going down because the managing directors will not retire."

Of the 601 persons named in the United States, women are engaged to 622.

ON THE AIR

What is Doing in the World of Radio

KFI station at Los Angeles has an arrangement which cuts off an entertainer or speaker without the person knowing that he is talking to a "dead mike."

A Missouri radio fan sends this in to a Kansas City broadcasting station: "Since your station started broadcasting our cat sleeps in the barn."

The biggest radio station in the world is that of Rugby, England, which covers the hundred acres and has twelve sided masts, each more than three hundred feet high. The total length of wires used in its aerials is more than three miles. It uses a super-power of 100 kilowatts and a wave length of about 6,000 meters.

The first wireless station on the Alps has been fitted up. It is located on St. Margaret's Hut, which is 5,250 feet above sea level on the route to the summit of Mount Rosa. Generally, when a climber is in danger and help is needed, the guide has to spend many hours getting down to the foot to secure assistance. With this wireless station at the top, all that is necessary is to send a summons in the next few minutes help will already be on the way.

Practically all large broadcast stations in New York are being sold for advertising. It is difficult for anyone to get advertising through these stations even at advance rates. ## Neuralgia Conquered Its Pain Destroyed

Magical Results Come When You Apply

NERVINE

It Acts Quickly

Mr. W. T. Giffney, formerly connected with the Gulliver newspaper staff, has written: "For twenty years and more I have suffered from neuralgia, and for the world would be without a remedy for all pain, headache, toothache, rheumatism, and dizziness, stomach, if only of no preparation to metal and quick to relieve is Nervine. Remember this, wherever there is pain, rub on Nervine, and you will get prompt results—25c at all dealers."

Tip On Tackling

Tacks are elastic and hammer in the leather hand bruise the fingers quickly. Try this: Stick the tack, cover old paper or light cardboard, then hold the paper in the desired position. Thus you may hang away at Mr. Tack until he is subdued.

To Asphixia Sufferers. Dr. J. D. Kolb says: "Asphixia Remedy causes like a helping hand to a sinking swimmer. It gives new life and hope—something he has come to believe is impossible. Its benefit is too evident to be questioned. It is the best remedy for its own best advertisement. If you suffer from asphixia get this tried remedy and find help thousands of others."

Victims Of Wild Animals

Over 3,000 People Killed in British India Last Year

In British India alone last year it is reported 3,065 persons were killed by wild animals and 20,000 died from snake bites. Tigers accounted for 1,683 deaths; wolves for 335; leopards for 461; and crocodiles took the lives of 212. The wild pig killed more than 100, bears and elephants about 70. During the year about 23,000 wild animals were killed, so that the rate of human to wild animal deaths in the jungle is only about one to six.

CHAPTER I.—Continued

New doubts, new specious took their place in the attitude that marches heavily across the shop girl's brain. The creditors, those inexpressible little people who fatten on the misadventures of the shop girl's purse with their brilliant prizes for flimsy things dug in their prongs and faded away. They were now of the yesterday. For the first time—the first time that she could remember, Joanna, waiting to be dismissed for some unknown offence against some unknown customer, thought of tomorrow as it loomed within her own outlook. Dismayed from one deer, the others would be, for a time, barred to her. And she had struggled long to attain the opulence of calicots of the higher grades. Had she been more accessible morally she would have been more prosperous.

But Joanna stopped short of a great many things; a stopping short too many people, classing her as one of a genus—the ultra modern goddess—would not have credited her with esteem. She contented impatiently and estimated herself one week of idleness, out of being too deep in trouble. Of course if the worst came to the worst she could pawn the fur wrap. Cohen wouldn't know.

But Joanna didn't want to pawn that coat. At any of the dancing places to which the boys took her it would be missed immediately. Other girls are observant of such things, and really a fur wrap is a serious mark of credit nowadays. None of the boys would be coming around for her if she showed up any place with her old and unfurled coat. Now, that is, except John.

She quarrelled with him only last night—again! She told him she was entirely too busy to keep up the pace with her. Somehow the thought of him, with whom a move would be worth a second thought, since none lasted from one evening to the next, comforted her. She looked suddenly at the Old Man's picture, her nervous secretary. She smiled a little forwardly with the thought that she, the secretary, would be the first to get John's girl to pretend to want her to be.

Pence the glorious Joanna with the shimmering gold brown hair and the flash of scarlet across her ears and silver pinks like that. And she alone laughed when the other girl in response to the purr of a buzzer nodded at her and said:

"That's Mr. Graydon. He'll see you now. Won't you go in?"

The vision of John and the city spectacle of herself trying to be the quiet, softly self-effacing secretary, to please him, had cleared Joanna's brain of the imaginings of tragedy. Her head was up and she was her best when she went through the door and stood in "the presence."

She sat down in the living room of stilette curtains she'd seen when she realized that the elderly, rather portly gray-haired man, who stood behind a great mahogany table to receive her was "The Old Man" and that he was actually sending across to her wrinkled her brow. "That's a great light came into her mind."

So THAT was it! She might have known. She was alert, shrewd, cunning, all at once. She braced herself for the fencing. The fur wrap was hanging. "Should" be no difference between the owner, who could summon her, and "Mr. Good Morning," who had to come to her counter with his fawning.

"Did you send for me? I'm from the 'Silks No. 27.' Her time was a challenge."

"The Old Man pointed to a chair. 'Won't you sit down?' he asked pleasantly. 'Twenty-seven stands for Joanna, doesn't it?'"

She answered lightly, "Joanna Manners." She wondered how long it would take to show her hand. Her resentment grew more bitter, minute. More and more she was convinced that there was only one, a commonplace more for her, a receptionist, a salesgirl, and a pretty one such as she knew was, by the way, no secret. "You don't like it?"

"The man across the table settled himself in his chair and faced her. A curious expression played about his eyes."

"Ah, yes," he murmured, "Joanna Manners. I understand that was the name of your father's secretary. Joanna, telling me where and how—'you live'?"

Joanna narrowed her eyes. "I live alone, I'm not in a palace either. And the rest of it, I'm satisfied."

Her employer seemed not to notice the change in her attitude. He smiled at her. "You don't like it?"

"I haven't any family," she answered him, still tiling her words. As an afterthought she added, "I can take care of myself as well as a family could, and I do."

The elderly man smiled at this. He began to recognize the symptoms. "I am sure of that, my dear," he said softly. "So let's speak of your friends. What kind of a man have you many?"

She had caught that "what kind," she said, "as if he were a profound conclusion, as one who would not hesitate to dismiss friends if they were not invited. Graydon felt he was almost out for myself."

Graydon drafted a quick look at her. He was silent for a minute, trying to find a safe subject. When he spoke he had resolved evidently to shorten his approach to whatever it was he had come to say to the salesgirl from the silk center who was not disposed to be humble in his presence.

"I must say that you impress me," he said, as if voicing a profound conclusion, as one who would not hesitate to dismiss friends if they were not invited. Graydon felt he was almost out for myself."

Graydon was still patient. "He said quietly, 'I suppose,' he said quite slowly, as if he wanted her mind to follow him. 'of Cinderella and the Prince who put her into the golden slipper?'"

"Yes," Joanna replied, "I've read about it—lots. But I'm off the prince stuff, and I put on my own slippers, thank you."

Then the Old Man laughed, laughed at some of his executives didn't laugh he could laugh. He dropped the paper and rose. Joanna rose with him, but he turned to a window and looked out into the skyscraper and the street below and there to release a glimpse of an ocean liner plunging its way down the esplanade toward the Narrows and the sea.

When he turned back into the room Joanna stood by her chair watching him steadily. He went almost up to her, so close that she had to tilt her face to look up at him. When he spoke again there was a new note in his voice.

"We mustn't fence, Joanna," he said. "I didn't send you with any wife pretence. I am to have the pleasure of delivering to you a message, a rather interesting message, I assure you. Something has happened to you, or for you, that so far as I know has never happened to any girl, at least so unexpectedly. First, I am to hand you this."

The sense of impending calamity suddenly named Joanna's brain. The danger of Graydon had become position. She stared, speechless, while he stood by his great desk.

When he turned over her again she took into her hands, wondering in small, thin book which she silently held to her. She looked up at him. He smiled, and then lifted his eyes to the folded letter and said to her, "Graydon recovered it and opening it, gave it to her, motioning her to read it."

She saw her name with the store address.

"When she had read the first typed paragraph, Joanna, with the shimmering gold brown hair, clutched frantically as if with her hands to catch her wandering will. One hand fluttered then to her throat. She gasped, and then she dropped into her chair.

The Secret Of Success

Concentrating on Work and Doing it Right Said Late Lord Northcliffe.

The late Lord Northcliffe, the great British newspaper owner, in a certain address concerning the secret of great success, said, "Concentration is the secret. Too many men don't concentrate; they dabble here and there in a great many different concerns or a large number of interests. I have only one, and that is journalism; and I've meant to devote myself to it because I devoted all my time to it."

"Work while you work, and play while you play," is an old adage. It means, no matter what you are doing, you should concentrate upon it and do it right. It means that while you are at work, you should work and when you play, play—hard. It means that while you are reading the newspapers, you should keep your mind strictly on all toilet papers and have been benefited therefrom. If you are digging a ditch, dig with all your might until you are ready to give the shovel your whole attention. In this way you will make every five minutes of your time count, and you will be able to say, with thoroughness, 'Concentration is the secret of success in politics, in war, in trade, in sport, in all the management of human affairs.'"

Congo Evolutionists Eat Inferiors

Two evolutionists have been found in the Congo. But no known as the Dabani believe that apes are descended from disgraced men. "We are here and ponder then the apes, therefore we eat them," they told the Rev. H. C. Graham, a returned missionary.

Luncheon Clubs Not New Idea

One Which Flourished in Ancient Days Had Queer Rules

The modern luncheon clubs such as the Rotary, Kiwanis and Knights of the Round Table, do not typify a new idea, according to records. Luncheon clubs were well established in A.D. 500 when the "Spectator's Club" flourished under rules that include:

1. No club shall be admitted into the club if it is of the same trade with any member of it; if any member wears a crown, his neighbor may give him a blow on the shin; if any member tells stories that are not true he shall forfeit for every third lie a half penny."

Mrs. S. Widenman Used Dodd's Kidney Pills

Ontario Lady Has Had No Return of Her Troubles Since Taking Dodd's Kidney Pills Four Years Ago.

Dr. Dodd's Kidney Pills have been a great help to me. I have been suffering from nervousness, dizzy spells and heart trouble for many years. I have tried many remedies but nothing has helped me until I took Dodd's Kidney Pills. I used four boxes and can say I have not been troubled since with either of the above troubles. I have been free from my troubles for four years ago. I work every day.

That Mrs. Widenman's trouble came from the kidneys is evidenced by the relief she got from Dodd's Kidney Pills. When the kidneys become weak, the circulation becomes sluggish, the impurities are not strained out of the blood and the result is weakness and lack of energy all over the body.

Little Helps For This Week

He leathens me.—Pa. xlii, 2.

Through many a thorny path He leads me, through many a path of tears I go. But it is sweet to know that He is close to me.

My God, my Guide, He leathens me, and I walk on, Ourselves.

Like Alpine climbers, our only relief is in ascending; taking our gaze on Him, our Guide, and following step by step the path He trod, that He might know all the dangers and difficulties that beset our way. And we may be sure He will never lead us further or faster than we can safely follow.

Dog Showed Perseverance

Irish Setter Puppy Traveled Eight Months to Find Old Home

We have given many stories of wonderful feats by dogs. Here is another very remarkable case reported in an English newspaper.

A boy living outside Paris sent to a breeder of dogs in the north of France requesting him to send him an Irish Setter puppy.

The puppy was placed in a crate and sent by train to the Gare du Nord station, where it was received by its new master, removed from the crate, taken across Paris in a taxi, and put in another train guarded by its master. On reaching its destination, a little village about fourteen kilometers on the other side of Paris, the dog was taken on a lead to its new home.

During the evening the dog was released for exercise in the garden, which was cutlery enclosed.

When the time came for the dog to be shut up for the night, however, it was nowhere to be seen. Its master searched high and low, consulting the police and was out half the night in vain. No trace of the truant could be found.

Eight months later came a letter from the breeder saying the dog had just arrived home. For all those months the poor creature had wandered about in search of its old home.

Canada's newest inland empire is the title given to the Peace River country by Sir Henry Thornton says, "It only 50 per cent. of the acreage of the Peace River districts were brought under cultivation, more wheat would then be produced than is done at present by the whole of Canada."

This country abounds in what the nations of the world want—pottery, cattle, sheep and grain. These are raised in abundance. Here, we have neither great empire in the west awaiting development, and an empire which will be rich in productiveness in the time to come.

RUN-DOWN AFTER BIRTH OF BABY

Ottawa Woman Made Strong by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ottawa, Ontario.—"I was terribly run-down after the birth of my third baby. I had awful bearing-down pains, and was afraid I had serious trouble. I was tired all the time and very nervous. My sister-in-law is taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and cannot resist it. I have been taking it for some time and feel fine all the time now. Any one who needs a thorough pick-me-up, non-narcotic, and safe, will find it. I have told me up to what to take."—Mrs. Harry P. Morris, 101 Cumberland Street, Ottawa, Ontario.

Terrible Backache

Hamilton, Ont.—"I was born with terrible backache and headaches. I could not do my work and felt tired from the first minute I got up. But worst of all were the pains in my sides when I moved. I was unable to sit or lie down for a while afterwards. I could hardly get up in order, but many things had to go unattended to. I have told my sister-in-law to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as she said it would help me up. I was relieved before I had taken the first box. I have not had any trouble like it since."—Mrs. T. M. Morris, 115 Regent Street, West, Hamilton, Ontario.

Foolish Saving

A penny saved is not always a penny earned. Sometimes it is two pennies lost. The merchant who spends nothing on advertising loses much more than he saves.

The money spent for plate glass windows is not looked on as lost; it is the money spent on better interior lighting.

Anything that increases the favor, that adds color, that multiplies customers is very properly regarded as a good investment.

Advertising is a good investment—just as plate glass windows are. Advertising sells more goods to more persons than shop windows do.
